

A Values-Based Approach To Managing Change

Synopsis

Juggling priorities would be much easier if things didn't change so much! This interactive presentation helps participants understand how personal values and change management/behavior styles impact the way they deal with workplace change and uncertainty. Participants will also learn how to leverage this knowledge to become more effective in managing change.

Benefits

1. To understand the stages that most individuals experience when dealing with significant or traumatic change.
2. To learn the relationship between behavior styles, personal values and the way individuals handle change.
3. To comprehend the levels, stages, and characteristics of organizational change.
4. To understand reasons for resisting change and how to overcome them.
5. To develop self-empowering strategies for greater job satisfaction and the management of change.

David Hayes

David Hayes is a dynamic and seasoned seminar leader, keynote speaker and management consultant. David is noted for making entertaining, thought-provoking and motivational presentations to large conference audiences as well as conference breakout workshops.

David specializes in workplace issues such as customer service, team building, supervisory skills, diversity management and workplace violence.

David will customize his presentation to maximize the benefits to your meeting or organization. His presentations are infused with his "values-based" system for understanding and addressing key workplace and organizational issues.